YACHTING HOTELS.

MANCHESTER.

—Rev. Dr. Canfield will hold service at St. John's (Episcopal) church each Sunday morning until further notice.

—Harry Prindle and family of New York have been visiting relatives in this place.

—L. C. Orvis, at the drug store, has hung out a Grant and Wilson flag, the first of the season.

—Rev. Mr. Gilbert, recently the associate of Rev. Mr. Morwin in the missionary work in Chili, preached at the Congregational Church last Sabbath. He also delivered a fine lecture on Tuesday evening.

—Nothing could be more delightful than the weather of the past week, and the numerous guests at our hotel have enjoyed the full measure of it. The air is so pure and exhilarating that it is a positive luxury to breathe, and if the bloom of health is not on every cheek it is not the fault of the weather.

—Judge Green has purchased of his partner, Mr. Bowen his half of the farm and personal property connected therewith. Mr. Green now has full sweep in the premises and will have one of the best farms and finest residences in town.

—C. A. Batchelder, for a long time assistant teacher at Burr and Burton Seminary, will give his whole attention to the study of the law, having entered the office of Burton & Munson for that purpose. He will attend the Albany Law School.

—Passengers from New York who take the night boat for Troy arriving at Manchester at 10:30 A. M., are much pleased with the new arrangement. It very much lessens the fatigue of the journey, while the ride up the Hudson is always pleasant and there is one hour in Troy for breakfast and then a quick train through. It is a much better arrangement for getting to Manchester than we have had for years.

—On Wednesday evening of last week this vicinity was suddenly visited by a high wind which filled the air with dust, perfectly blinding the eyes of all who were so unfortunate as to be out, and it happened that several parties from the hotels were out riding. The rain soon followed causing the dust to subside but giving its victims a ducking hardly more agreeable than the dust. The storm was very sudden and violent but did no great damage in this vicinity though other localities were not so fortunate.

—The Vergennes Vermonter has received a copy of the Vermont Journal and Universal Advertiser, printed at Windsor, Vt., Sept. 11th, 1786, by Routh & Spouer which was left with us for examination by Edgar Roberts. At the time it was printed Isaac Tichenor was a justice of the peace in Bennington. At a convention held at Manchester, July 3d, 1786 it was resolved that the General Assembly be recommended at their next session to pass a law directing the several towns in the State to pay their respective representatives in the future. The General Assembly held its session here at that time.

—Fourth of July passed off very quietly with nothing to distinguish it from other days, except on the part of the boys, who rang the Court House Bell early and late to the supreme disgust of everybody, and who let off torpedoes and fire crackers, until these articles of Fourth of July consumption gave out—or their money did. We know of one party of young people who started on that day for Table Rock, and, after getting nicely dressed in the fine shower that came down upon the mown grass about mid-day, picnicked in a sugar house. We wait with that party! Oh no! We went with another party for a swim in the beautiful Lakekill.

TOURIST.

—There are a few cases of measles in our vicinity; but, as a general thing, it affects children very slightly.

—The Funeral of Perry Chapman was attended at his residence July 6th. He was just in the prime of life—a little short of forty-eight—and will be missed by his family and friends. Notwithstanding these few cases of sickness, we consider that our town is remarkably healthy this summer.

—Henry Sheldon and wife, of Troy and Arthur Sheldon, of Massachusetts, are visiting relatives in town.

—Wm. J. Gilbert, Esq., a graduate of Burr & Burton Seminary and of Middlebury College, subsequently admitted to the bar at Niles, Michigan, where he began practicing law, is now spending a few weeks in town.

—Dr. Henry A. Sheldon a former resident of West Rupert, while visiting at one of his daughters in town, was taken suddenly ill, a few days ago, and now there is little hope of his recovery.

—Farmers begin haying this week and intend to make short work of it, with the help of mowers, horse rakes, forks, and other modern improvements.

—Your correspondent had the pleasure of being one of the party which took a trip to the top of Mount Equinox on the 1st inst. To say that we had a good time does not express it at all. It is true, that when we arrived at the summit house we were rather "damp," but a glimpse of the blue sky in the north and west had a great reviving influence on us, and soon a bright sun made all things right. So that by 8 o'clock,—after a good supper—we were ready to witness the display of fireworks from Manchester and East Dorset. It was indeed a beautiful sight. Of course we sent ours toward the heavens, and felt satisfied that they were better than those in the valley, for they were much higher. We burned several hundred fire crackers, principally to "scare the girls." By-the-way, I forgot to say that one half of our party were ladies. We retired very anxious to see a good sunrise, but our hopes were frustrated for a dense fog covered the height till after we had gone. To pass away the time, when there was any to spare, the gentlemen discussed, repeatedly and very warmly, the political question of the day, to wit: Who would make the best president Grant or Greeley? We are happy to say that the great majority were in favor of Grant and Wilson, since only two favored Greeley and Brown. We left the Summit house in good condition, and, it is said to our credit, that we swept it thoroughly before starting. The weather was magnificient as we journeyed towards home, which we reached sometime, fully satisfied with the way in which we had spent the Fourth of July.

EAST DORSET.

—DEAR JOURNAL:—Of the amount of additional business done here this Summer perhaps enough has been told, but have you heard how the glorious Fourth was celebrated? If not, let me give a brief description. Mr. Struthers of Philadelphia, the employer of the large number of journeyman stone cutters, who are making our village lively this summer, but let us record it to their credit, are not making it disorderly, determined to make the national holiday a grand occasion for his numerous employees. His free expenditure of money among us hitherto has prepared us for almost any amount of liberality, but he rather outdid himself upon this celebration. A grand picnic was the determined mode of enjoyment, and to it he invited not only the stone cutters but all the workmen in our mills and quarries. The most lavish preparations were made for refreshments. All the delicacies of the season which could be produced here, largely reinforced from the New York markets, were liberally provided, and the canned products of other climes and seasons were added to the abundant supply. Need I also add that there were also bottled juices of foreign importation, which proved not bad to take, although they were not of the exhilarating kind. Not a single case of intoxication was seen during the day, a good record to make of so festive an occasion. This feast of good things was spread in that beautiful and sumptuous manner so characteristic of Mrs. M. S. Colborn although she had no notice of the affair but just a few hours before, and over the distribution of which she, assisted by the other members of her family, presided with her accustomed grace. Among the many valuable and elegant presents Mr. and Mrs. Whipple received from their friends none will be prised more highly and cherished more carefully than this, the gift of the curriers and tanners, many of whom have been in the employ of Mrs. Whipple's father for a long time and with whom "Johnnie" has been associated for many years as his employer's confidential clerk, and the recollection of the happy episodes in any of the lives of those interested in this pleasant affair will in future time recall no deeper feeling of lamplike pride and pleasure than this.

—We accidentally omitted to give the names of the delegates from this town to the County Convention in the last JOURNAL. They were Hiram Griswold and C. W. Whittlesey.

—Farmers are rejoicing over the prospect of an abundant hay crop. The grain fields are also looking unusually promising.

—The fourth of July passed off very quietly in this place, one would hardly know that it was the anniversary of independence had not some of the smaller ones had their usual amount of Torpedoes and an occasional scream of "Hurrah" or "Earl has got one of my Torpedoes" or "Mary won't let me fly her flag." The young men who were on their muscle spent their strength playing base ball; the Harvesters against the Axtons, the

SILATON.

—Howard & Wilder recently had a fine two year old gelding killed by the bears. The remains of the "feast" were found a short distance from the pasture and it is supposed the marauders chased their victim some distance before seizing her. Where are our Nimbros?

—Alltogether it was a very good day for all the folks who were willing to be pleased, and most productive of good feeling between employees and employer. Certainly, we are willing to believe nothing but that which is true and of good report of the citizens of Philadelphia, and are sure that William Penn made no mistake in bestowing upon it its beautiful name.

DAIRY.

—Mrs. Sheppard, a widow lady, lost two valuable cows on the 3d inst., killed by lightning.

—Mr. James Abbott is slowly recovering from his protracted illness.

—Our present successful term of school under the management of Miss Marden is drawing to a close. The fall term commences in September.

—The Sunday School at Emersenville has been reorganized, under the superintendence of Mr. E. B. Rugg.

—We have preaching every alternate Sabbath by Rev. Mr. Buckley, of Boston, who preaches the remaining Sabbaths at St. Louis. He is talented and draws a large congregation.

—Mrs. Geo. W. Richardson fell into the cellar of her residence, recently, in consequence of some defect in the stairs. It was thought that she was seriously injured, but no bones were broken and she is rapidly recovering.

—The Congregational people of Danby are feeling sadly that their efforts to retain Rev. J. P. Stone as their minister are not likely to prove successful. He is expected to leave town on Saturday next to spend the Sabbath at Clarence on exchange with Rev. Dr. Herrick, who will preach at Danby next Sabbath p.m. This further notice Mr. Stone's postoffice address will be Norwich, Vt. The Congregationalists of Danby hope to be able to procure another minister soon.

SAUGATUCK.

—On the Fourth, our people in considerable numbers, attended the celebrations at Chester and Rawsonville. We did not neglect, however, to suspend over the principal street the glorious old banner of freedom; and through the day young Americans were frequently heard from the liberal use of gunpowder.

—There was a goodly attendance at the hall given by Mr. Joel Todd. It was the first time he has been proprietor of the hotel and will long be remembered with pleasure, not only from the fact that the tables were furnished with a luxury and style never before surpassed in this place, but every effort was made to make the occasion pleasant and agreeable.

SONGBIRD.

—A. Sandvige has sold his farm known as the vineyard farm to J. R. Lytle for $5,000.

SUNDRELLAND.

—On the Fourth, our people in considerable numbers, attended the celebrations at Chester and Rawsonville. We did not neglect, however, to suspend over the principal street the glorious old banner of freedom; and through the day young Americans were frequently heard from the liberal use of gunpowder.

—Washington Engine, No. 2, took the first prize at the Glens Falls Firemen's Muster on the 4th.

—The Rutland Baptist Sabbath School will take an excursion to North Bennington, Thursday, July 11th, a special train leaving Rutland at 8 o'clock a.m., and returning early in the evening. Hon. T. W. Park has generously tendered the use of his fine grove at North Bennington for the occasion. Tickets can be purchased, by parties not connected with the school, for one dollar, at the book store of Tuttle & Co.

ROBERT.

—Crops of all kinds are looking very fine for the season.

—The political atmosphere continues a little foggy yet. The rumor is quite strong now and I think that it is destined to be more general, that the people and not the politicians are going to elect the next president of these United States.

—One more of our old residents has passed to the other side of the River. Phillip W. Youlen of this town died on the 3d day of July at the age of 75 years.

—Mr. Simeon Sheldon and family left town, on the 3d of July with the intention of making the west their future home. Mr. Sheldon was one of Rupert's substantial citizens. The vacuum he will leave in our society will not be easily filled.

MIDDLEBURY.
